NOW TO DISCUSS FEDERAL RELIEF FOR DAIRY PRICE

AAA TURNS ATTENTION TO RAISING SURPLUS MILK PRICE, OTHER AIDS TO GREAT WISCONSIN INDUSTRY.

Washington—(AP)—With its cornhog and wheat reduction programs pouring millions of dollars into farmers' pockets, the agricultural adjustment administration is turning its attention to price improvements for the dairyman.

Relief for the dairy farmer has largely been confined to date to price agreements for bottled milk in the large milk sheds of the country, and the next logical step, in the opinion of Secretary Wallace, is to bolster the price received for surplus milk, that which goes into cheese and butter and other by-products.

To Report Findings

Department officials conferred today toward this end. They had before them the report of a committee appointed some time ago to study various proposals for production control in the industry and were said to be almost ready to report their findings to Secretary Wallace.

This committee is composed of Dr. E. W. Gaunmitz, chief economist of the dairy section of the department of agriculture; J. B. Shepard, of the division of crop and livestock estimates; Dr. O. E. Reed, chief of the dairy bureau; Dr. F. R. Tolley, chief economist of the production control division of the AAA; Dr. Fred Weaver, Pennsylvania State college; and Nils A. Olsen, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics.

Eliminate "Star Boarders"

Various proposals are under consideration. Some sort of processing tax is considered inevitable. There are plans for reducing herds by eliminating non-producing cows. Methods of increasing consumption are suggested.

Following a conference last week between Secretary Wallace and J. D. Beck, commissioner of the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets, it was announced today that the butter agreement was almost ready for the secretary's approval. Commissioner Beck had urged quick action.

A date will be set within a couple of weeks for a hearing on the proposed marketing agreement for the cheese industry, it was learned. The hearing will be held in Wisconsin, the secretary has determined, probably in Madison or Milwaukee.

PEEK CRITICIZES ULTRA-LIBERALS

FARM ADMINISTRATOR DECLARES GOVERNMENT IS NOT NOW GOING INTO PRIVATE BUSINESS.

Chicago—(AP)—Liberals who talk about federal control of private business, and the methods of some farm strike leaders drew criticism today from George N. Peek, farm administrator, in an address before the American Farm Bureau federation's fifteenth annual convention.

Peek is about to resign as farm administrator as a result of a dispute with agriculture department liberals and take a new job at the head of an agency that will try to find ways of disposing of agricultural surpluses. After saying he believed the export field would reward "a careful looking-into," he asserted:

Enough "Hay Down" Now

"There is grave concern over the expressions of a few ultra-liberals about the government taking over private business. If you want my opinion—personally, not officially, mind you—I would say that this apprehension is unwarranted. Unless it hustles, the government has more hay down now that it will get up before it rains.

"The foundation of the whole structure (of the American government) from the first has been a respect for private property rights, and the sacredness of contracts. Legitimate profits have always been regarded in this country as a proper reward for individual initiative, industry, and thrift. I know of no substitute for such traits. I am in favor of the profit system; but I am in favor of starting with the farmer.

Profit System

"There is abroad in the land a propaganda of more or less importance for doing away with the profit system. This means no more and no less than doing away with the institutions under which we have all grown up and prospered more or less. I am against the racketeers of high finance as much as I am against the racketeers in the underworld. But the remedy lies not in destroying our institutions."

Of farm strikers:

"I do not protest against the hot impatience of some farm leaders I do protest against their methods, because I think they are futile. And I protest against a strike aimed at the president of the United States and his administration—an administration which honestly is endeavoring to do all that agriculture has asked of previous administrations: That is to say, restore equality to agriculture."

Bissell, Leading Lumberman, Dead

Wausau, Wis., Dec. 12—(AP)—W. H. Bissell, 75, for many years a leading Wisconsin lumberman, died at his home here yesterday after an illness of six years. He was a partner in the Yawkey-Bissel Lumber company which operated saw mills at Arbor Vitae and Hazelhurst, and a director of numerous lumber companies, paper mills, the Old American National bank, and the Great Northern Life Insurance company.

"Hangman" Trees to Warm Needy

Badly hacked by morbid souvenir hunters, the "hangman's" trees in St. James park, San Jose, Calif., have been felled to eliminate the ghastly reminder of the double lynching of the slayers of Brooke Hart. Workmen are shown here as they prepared to start chopping one of the trees into firewood for poor families of the city.

Perfect Attendance Record Is Set By Oak Leaf School

The Oak Leaf school of town of Richfield, with Miss Emma Rink as teacher, is the only school in Wood county to have a perfect attendance record for the month of October, the second month of the school year, according to the report submitted by county superintendent of schools, S. LOCAL MEN HEAR U. C. T. LEADER

HAROLD SMITH, WISCONSIN GRAND COUNCILLOR, URGES GREATER CO-OPERATION BETWEEN SALESMAN AND MERCHANT.

Stressing the need for greater cooperation and team work between traveling commercial men and merchants and urging traveling salesmen to "know your product and assist the merchants you sell by giving them every sales help" Harold C. Smith, Racine, grand councillor of the United Commercial Travelers of Wisconsin, said in outlining the team work campaign of the travelers' organization at a meeting of local merchants and commercial men at the Rose room of the Hotel Witter last evening.

Mr. Smith was introduced to the assemblage by Edwin Johnson, past senior councillor of the local council of the U. C. T. Senior Councillor P. J. LeBlond and J. N. Reiland, secretary-treasurer of the local unit of the nationwide organization, served on the reception committee.

Relates History

The principal speaker first traced the history of the United Commercial Travelers, pointing out that at the present time the organization has a membership of 80,000, 4,000 of whom are located in Wisconsin. He stated that the team work program started about two years ago and that "it has now developed to the point where we feel that every merchant and every commercial man should be a member of the organization."

He recalled the resolution adopted by the Wisconsin State Hotelmen's association calling for patronage by the hotels of only those firms which have traveling salesmen on the road. He said that one other state, Nebraska, has adopted a similar resolution.

"Loss of Business"

He talked against buying direct from companies who give premiums with merchandise in preference to having salesmen on the road and pointed out to the merchants that when salesmen are taken off the road it means loss of business for every town and city.

Mr. Smith said that every salesman should learn merchandising. He urged them to know their product and to give the merchants all the sales help they possibly could. He further stated that the official publication of the U. C. T. had been stressing the need for the right kind of merchandising for the past several years.

He warned against selling shoddy merchandise and cutting prices. "Be sure the product you sell is the best and you can always go back a second time," he declared. On price cutting he said "stick to your price and lose a sale,"

"No Age of Miracles"

This is not an age of miracles, it is an age of work," the speaker declared as he recalled several sales instances which happened during his 25 years of selling.

He said that he felt that the "team work program is so big that every one of you can have a part in it." He stated that the organization had three things to offer, namely fraternalism, protection and the opportunity to sit in council with commercial men and discuss selling problems. He said that he was going to sell the U. C. T. and make it the biggest organization of its kind in the country.

Approximately 50 merchants and salesmen attended the gathering.

Press Search For Missing U. W. Girl

Chicago, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Search for Ann E. Knauer, pretty University of Wisconsin co-ed, was pressed by police here today at the request of Wisconsin authorities.

Miss Knauer, 20-year-old sophomore, disappeared from the campus on Dec. 4, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Knauer, of Eagle River, Wis., have said they do not believe she disappeared voluntarily. This belief is shared by her uncle, J. H. Kellerhals of Chicago.

In tracing the girl, police learned from a Madison, Wis., cab driver that she had mentioned going to Kansas City.

Jonathan Reinhart, 81, Resident Here Since 1865, Dead

Jonathan W. Reinhart, age 81, died at the home of his son, J. L. Reinhart, 240 Fifth street north, Monday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock following an illness of several weeks' duration.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock from the J. L. Reinhart home to the SS. Peter and Paul Catholic church at 9 o'clock with Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Reding officiating. Interment will take place in Calvary cemetery. The remains will lie at the home until time for the services.

Mr. Reinhart was born April 15, 1852, at Bourge Louis, Quebec, Canada, the son of Lucinda McWilliams and Jonathan Reinhart, sr., and came to Wisconsin Rapids with his father and one sister in 1865. His mother died in 1868. After working in this city for several years for T. B. Scott, he went to Eureka, Nevada, with a brother and secured employment in the silver mines.

Three years later he returned to Wisconsin and purchased a tract of land near Rudolph which he cleared and farmed. He was married at St. Phillip's Catholic church at Rudolph March 2, 1880 to Margaret Conway. To this union three children were born, all of whom survive. Mrs. Reinhart preceded her husband in death 34 years ago.

In 1898 Mr. Reinhart sold his farm at Rudolph and moved with his family to California, residing for one year at Palms, now a part of Los Angeles. Again returning to Rudolph he purchased the Rezin farms living there until 1914 when he retired from farm life. Since that time he has been spending his winters in California with his daughter, Mrs. Lee Barnidge, and the summers in Wisconsin with his sons.

The deceased is survived by his three children, Leonard, of this city, Myron of Rudolph and Mrs. Lee Barnidge of Roscoe, Calif. Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. John La Haie of this city, a brother, John, of Culver City, Calif., and four grandchildren.

Says $2-$3 Tax On Liquor Low Enough

Washington—(AP)—A liquor tax "somewhere between $2 and $3 a gallon" and low enough to squeeze out the bootlegger was advocated to a joint congressional committee today by Joseph H. Choate, jr., chairman of the federal alcohol control administration.

He was followed by Edward G. Lowry, jr., chairman of President Roosevelt's interdepartmental committee, who expressed the opinion that a blended whisky of rather low quality might eventually be sold for $1.50 a quart under a $2.60 a gallon federal tax. The committee had recommended a levy of this amount.

Choate did not mention a specific figure, in line with the administration's policy of leaving a decision up to Congress. A $2.20 a gallon levy was frequently mentioned as probable.

President Roosevelt was represented as being more interested in driving the bootlegger out of business than in boosting the amount of liquor revenues.

If you seriously desire to get rid of an oily hair condition, set aside twenty minutes each night just before you go to bed and plan to work hard during all of that time.

Four things you will need for this scalp treatment—a good brush with flexible bristles, clean cotton pads, an astringent tonic and a large, clean towel.

First, brush the hair lightly to remove excess dust and dirt. Then with your comb, part your hair into small sections. Dip a cotton pad in the tonic and rub it right on the scalp. Keep on making small parts and rubbing on more tonic until every inch of the scalp is moist. Remember that you are primarily interested in treating the scalp and there isn't any use wasting the tonic on your hair.

When the cotton pad begins to look soiled, throw it away and use a clean one.

When you have finished with the tonic (it shouldn't take more than two tablespoonfuls for each treatment), rub your hair briskly with the clean towel. Then begin brushing.

With each stroke, see that the brush starts right on the scalp. This stimulates circulation and helps to work the tonic into the pores. Twist the brush slightly as you draw it away from the scalp so that each strand of hair is drawn through the bristles. Repeat the treatment every night.

YOUR CHILDREN

A good many of us have the unpleasant habit of saving up the needs of the family until Christmas time.

Bob needs underwear, Susan a coat, Aunt Mary a carpet sweeper and Dad a pair of galoshes. We ourselves have been wanting new shades for the bedroom and have hinted darkly for a month that if anybody buys them be sure they match the rest of the house.

Far be it from me to scorn these necessities. It is a grand and glorious feeling to know that each member is getting just what we think he needs.

Days for Practical Giving

But why not set aside some other day for the drab goodness of replacement? Why not the Fourth of July or Labor Day? Why pick on Christmas, the loveliest day in the year, to express ourselves in egg beaters and chest warmers?

Of course it does so happen that older people often choose the more practical gift. Therefore as everybody must be happy on Christmas Day it doesn't really matter, I suppose, whether the messenger that carries our good will and love is prosaic or poetical. That each one is pleased and happy is the big thing.

But children don't feel this way. They are not practical. They want their gifts to flavor of magic, of fairyland, of the too-good-to-be-true variety.

Being what they are I don't think any mother needs to feel at all guilty in spending money on them for non-essentials. Order the underwear or whatever you feel you must get out of your own system, but present it on the 24th or 26th of December and keep a little cut for the 25th to be foolish with. It isn't the value of gifts that counts with children so much as the unusual. The present that can be had most any work day is not the thriller that a gay token or toy is.

Unusual Gifts Have Place

It is hard to do, while the spirit of Christmas, so many things conspire together to make it a season of rejoicing. It is the Greatest Birthday in the world to begin with. From this many other things emanate. hope first of all, the temporary suspension of gloom and worry, a warm feeling of love and good will to everybody, gratitude for life and a symbolic looking forward to a newer and better life.

"Isn't it allowable then to go a bit mad, a bit merry at this tender season? To express our happiness to those we love by gifts that are not too commonplace or too sensible?

I never felt guilty about having a Christmas tree, or in buying silly baubles to hang on it. A waste of good pine? Nothing is a waste that contributes to happiness. I never look at a gay little tree and think "What a pity! It could grow up to be a nice kitchen table or baking board some day."

Nothing is too good for Christmas. Yet it isn't all a matter of money. One can be quite gay on very little plus some ingenuity and pluck.

Bridge League Official Makes Small Slam by Locating Opponents' Holdings and Playing Through Them

Solutions to Previous Contract Problem

BY WM. E. McKENNEY
Secretary, American Bridge League

Here is an interesting card-reading hand played by the treasurer and tournament director of the American Bridge league—Russell J. Baldwin of Cleveland. While Mr. Baldwin has few opportunities to enter tournament competition, due to the fact that he conducts all the major tournaments held in the United States, he is a keen card player, distribution and percentage possibilities being his hobby.

West's overcall of two diamonds not vulnerable is not dangerous. North's jump to four hearts is a slam try bid. South's bid of five shows some additional strength and a five-card suit. With this information, North goes to six.

North: ♠ A 7 4 3 ♥ Q J 5 3 ♦ A 7 ♣ K 6 2
West: ♠ 9 ♥ 8 6 4 ♦ K Q J 10 5 2 ♣ 10 9 5
East: ♠ Q J 10 6 ♥ 9 ♦ 9 8 4 3 ♣ J 7 4 3
South: ♠ K 8 5 2 ♥ A K 10 7 2 ♦ 6 ♣ A Q 8
(North–South vulnerable; East dealer)

Duplicate—N. and S. Vul.
Opening lead—♦ K.

South	West	North	East

Today's Contract Problem

South has the contract at three no trump West opens a spade. After East and West cash four spade tricks, can they be prevented from winning any further tricks?

North: ♠ Q 3 ♥ K J 6 5 ♦ 6 5 4 2 ♣ 10 7 6
West: ♠ A 10 9 8 6 ♥ Q 9 ♦ 7 3 ♣ 8 5 4 2
East: ♠ K 2 ♥ 10 7 3 2 ♦ K J 10 8 ♣ K Q 9
South: ♠ J 7 5 4 ♥ A 8 4 ♦ A Q 9 ♣ A J 3
(North–South dealer)

The Play

West's opening lead was the king of diamonds, which was won in dummy with the ace. Mr. Baldwin then took three rounds of trump and then led a small club, winning in dummy with the king. The seven of diamonds then was ruffed and the ace and queen of clubs cashed.

Mr. Baldwin now had located three hearts and three clubs in the West hand. West had made an overcall of diamonds, which undoubtedly showed him with at least five diamonds. If he held two spades, the contract was made easily, while if he held no spades the contract was lost.

Mr. Baldwin figured further that, if West held a singleton spade, it must be the nine spot or better, and if he held one of the four outstanding high cards, the contract could be made with a safety play.

Therefore, a small spade was led, West played the nine, and Mr. Baldwin played a small spade from dummy, allowing West's nine to hold. East could not overtake with the ten—otherwise Mr. Baldwin would hold a tenace position with his king-eight.

Therefore, East was forced to play a small spade, and now West had no spade to return. He had to lead a diamond, which Mr. Baldwin trumped in one hand, discarding a spade from the other, and giving him his contract of six odd.
